Last KDA Meeting: November 4, 2009!

In honor of Halloween past, we enjoyed a spooky evening at our favorite haunt, Barnaby's, sipping spirits while listening to Randell Spackman speak of spirits.. His 200-acre haunted property c. 1709, Thornbury Farm, on South New Street in West Chester, was featured recently on the the SyFy channel's "Ghosthunter!" Cold, dark springs, hand-dug wells, passageways, quarries, and two cemeteries, the site of two mass burials the result of heavy losses on both sides of the final troop engagement of the Battle of Brandywine, the largest land battle of the American Revolution, the final stand of the Continental Army under George Washington – all contributed to the paranormal activity destined to keep the SPIRIT of Halloween ALIVE for just a few more days! We followed along with the Ghosthunters investigating the banging of stalls in the Barn, the spirit of a POW in the large deep spring house once used to hold prisoners, a small child's spirit in a bedroom and that of a soldier in the living room of the main house which had been used as a hospital where the limbs of hurt soldiers were thrown from the window after gruesome surgery practices of the time. The original house and the 1812 farm house – across the driveway – were once part of the Underground Railroad! And I finally found out what that large rectangular door was for that you see on the outside wall on the second floor of old houses: it's the coffin door – and it leads to the bedroom so the body can be taken out directly to the waiting coach after the spirit has gone to the great beyond! And speaking of ghosts - I think that was Brian Walsh sitting at my table! Steve Boyko won the 50-50 (for probably the 50th time!) Hey, let's do EBD's house next – there's GOT to be LOTS of Ghosts just hanging out. Expect a visit from the ghost of shipwrecks past admiring the plethora of paranormal artifacts about!"CU 12-11-09 @ DDD & 12-6-09 at the Mendenhall Inn!
